AASECT Institute Summer 2009:

The Summer Institute in 2009 is designed to address core concepts in human sexuality. The content areas are in-line with requirements for AASECT certification in all categories. This is a wonderful opportunity for professionals beginning their certification process to address significant preparation requirements. The Institute utilizes interactive training methods which are consistent with adult learning theory. The Institute facilitates practical application of the knowledge and skills obtained. Regardless of whether you are doing clinical work in therapy or counseling, or creating and delivering educational interventions, the AASECT Summer Institute will provide a solid base for your important work.

The AASECT Summer Institute will provide approximately 40 AASECT CEs

Goals

- Provide participants with continuing education credits in basic sexuality content that meets AASECT certification requirements.
- Provide participants opportunities to explore personal values and belief systems that may affect the delivery of professional clinical/educational services.
- Provide participants opportunities to develop skills in identifying the biological, psychological and social substrates of basic issues in contemporary sexuality.

Note: Advanced training in sex therapy, sex counseling and sexuality education is available through other AASECT continuing education opportunities.

The Institute will address each of the following content areas:

- Sexual and reproductive anatomy/physiology
- Sociocultural issues & values
- Gender issues
- Sexual orientations
- Sexuality over the lifespan
- Family dynamics
- Interpersonal relationships & sexual functioning
- Sexual expression
- Medical & pharmacology issues
- STI's, HIV, contraception, & fertility
- Sex & Power
- Illness & disability
